

Florida mom filing suit after child transitioned at school without her consent: 'Happening all over' US

April 16, 2022 3:49pm EDT Fox News

[Ed. Note: I just couldn't pass this one up. It is horrible anti-trans hype.]

Parents are taking their children's school to court, alleging teachers encouraged their children to change their pronouns and names without the parents' knowledge. [As you will note, this whole screed is about two children, who were apparently in the same class.]

Parents Stephen Foote and Marissa Silvestri [Talk about different names. Were they even married?] claim their child was encouraged by Ludlow Public School officials to adopt a new name and different gendered pronouns. [Why was the school doing this, I wonder? What was the lesson plan?] Parents Jonathan Feliciano and Sandra Salmeron, who are also involved in the suit, allege the school's policies to withhold information from parents about children's gender identities violates their parental and religious rights. [If the parents don't know their child's gender by the time the child is in school, the parents haven't paid much attention to their child.]

[The Ludlow School Committee and implicated educators] exceeded the bounds of legitimate pedagogical concerns and usurped the role of [the plaintiffs] and other parents in the Town of Ludlow to direct the education and upbringing of their children, make medical and mental health decisions for their children and to promote and preserve family privacy and integrity," the lawsuit alleges. [This is pure Fox-wash. A good teacher is always looking out for the health and well being of a student. To suggest that the teacher is making medical or mental health decisions is ridiculous.]

"Defendants' protocol and practice of concealing from parents information related to their children's gender identity and efforts to affirm a discordant student gender identity at school violates parents' fundamental rights under the United States and Massachusetts constitutions and violates children's reciprocal rights to the care and custody of their parents, familial privacy and integrity." [The teacher had observed the child for a few months and noticed the possibility of Gender Dysphoria. The parents had observed the child for over six years and didn't have a clue.]

NJ GOV. MURPHY DISTANCES HIMSELF FROM 2ND GRADERS LEARNING GENDER IDENTITY, CALLS FOR AGE-APPROPRIATE CONTENT [A person's gender identity is obvious to the person by age 4. It isn't going to change.]

The lawsuit carves out specific complaints on behalf of Feliciano and Salmeron, who are basing their lawsuit on religious freedom. [The people who wrote the Old Testament didn't have a clue about Gender Dysphoria. In the New Testament, Mark tells us that Jesus knew about and accepted trans people.]

"As to plaintiffs Jonathan Feliciano and Sandra Salmeron, it also violates their fundamental right to free exercise of religion under the United States and Massachusetts constitutions." [What religion tells you that it is okay to mistreat your children and deny them proper medical care?]

The lawsuit was prepared and filed on behalf of the families by two organizations – the Massachusetts

Family Institute and the Child and Parental Rights Campaign.

"We want to support our students the best we can," Ludlow School Committee Chair James Harrington told state news outlet MassLive. "But we should bring parents to the table and hope they respond in a loving and supportive way as well." [And, if they don't, then what? File charges of child abuse; or just abandon the child to its fate?"]

The case is set to go before a federal court.